

The curtains have all been washed and the household laces and penates polished up to suit even the house-keeper, and for the first time in so many days the would-be hostess dares to plan a day or so ahead for social doling. The consequence is that there will be a busy time during this first week after the return to the world from the solemnity of the cloister. Tomorrow why be devoted to seeing how well the neighbors clean up their yards, but from that day on there will be a reign of social joy such as we have not had in months. Tuesday Mrs. Henry W. Lawrence will give a tea in honor of her daughter, Mrs. J. H. Young of Denver, who is here for the glad Easter tide. Mrs. Howard S. Stove will inaugurate a series of small affairs the same day. Mrs. W. P. Kiser will give a dinner in honor of the bride, Miss Polly Wakeling, and the same evening the big farewell will be given at the post, the first formal one since the holiday time, and the last before the departure of the batteries to Fort D. A. Russell.

Mrs. Ferdinand J. Fabian will be the hostess at the first of a series of bridge teas on Wednesday and two weddings of note will take place that evening. Miss Josephine Wells marrying D. Douglas Moffat and Miss Polly Wakeling and Percy V. Molson having chosen the day for their nuptials. Mrs. Russell L. Tracy will entertain at a large affair on Thursday and the Sons of the American Revolution will give their annual banquet at the Commercial club that evening.

Mrs. Fabian gives the second tea Friday afternoon, and numerous smaller affairs, musicals, dinners and minor luncheons will be going on all the time. The musicians have come out in force and there will be recitals during the entire week, not to mention the theater attractions.

Much interest is being aroused socially over the coming of Jan Kubelik and his beautiful wife, the Countess Czaky Szell, who will be entertained extensively during their short tour of the country in all the large cities they have visited. In San Francisco the Sequoia club gave a reception for them, the Baroness Von Meyernick gave an at home, Mrs. J. Downey Hartley entertained in their honor and the Sorosis, Bohemian and Family clubs gave banquets.

And so, after all these months of anxiety it is at last an assured fact that the popular clergyman will marry one of the prettiest and best known girls in town next week. The engagement has not yet been announced, but the girl told in confidence that the minister has already been engaged to perform the ceremony. And as is his custom he will marry the girl referred to to one of his own friends.

The extreme modesty of the group of young hopefuls who made up a party at the play the second night is only exceeded by their retiring natures. Whenever a man finds that he is not getting his share of boosting in the society columns you can depend on it he takes pains to tell all his friends how carefully he is obliged to conceal his goings out and especially his comings in, from the rabid society reporters.

Although strenuous efforts are being made to put the new Country club in order for the usual "spring opening" it will be impossible to have the house in readiness before May 1. The grounds are daily growing in beauty and general appearance but the place is not yet dry enough to tempt even the enthusiasts.

The play with the ring has been demonstrated for the past few days to the knights at the table round. The spirit of the noble gentlemen would argue an element of the feminine in the bunch. The real story of the little ring would interest and amuse if the truth were known.

If there is any man who comes in for a bigger share of watchfulness than the desirable bachelor (in the singular) it is the good-looking widower. And now it is said that "one of him" is casting longing looks at a fair literary lady of the village and the knot is to be tied shortly.
